Indigestion

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

A WATERY GRAVE.

Two Ships Sunk at Sea in Seven Minutes.

SIXTY-EIGHT DROWNED.

Dreadful Collision and Death Struggle in the Dark.

Many Lives Lost by the Sudden Sinking of the Steamship Vizcaya and an Unknown Schooner off the New Jersey Coast—Graphic Stories of the Collision and Their Subsequent Fight for Life Told by a Handful of the Vizcaya's Crew—Her Passengers All Drowned, and but Twelve Out of the Crew of Seventy-seven Reached Shore Alive—The Fate of the Schooner's Crew Still Shrouded in Mystery.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Six miles off Barnegat, on the Jersey coast, on Thursday evening was the steamship Vizcaya on her way to Havana. Near by was an unknown and probably unseen schooner. The night was clear—the moon shining brightly; the sea smooth. The hour was half past eight. Seven minutes later both vessels were at the bottom of the sea, and with them sank sixty-eight of their passengers and crews. In those seven minutes a collision and death struggle with the waves had taken place, a scene had occurred which even the dozen survivors cannot give the details of without stopping to make sure that it is not all a horrible dream.

Fourteen of the Dead.

The entire lot of passengers of the Vizcaya were lost. Their names are: Senor Juan Pedro, a partner of the firm of J. M. Ceballos & Co., of this city, and one of the owners of the lost steamship; M. A. Calvo, wife and son; M. Purr and two children; Mr. A. Ruiz, Jose Acaibia, Ramon Alvarez, Juan F. Hedman, Oscar Islam, Ligui Pellion and Jose M. Garcia.

Twelve of the crew of seventy-seven were saved from the steamship. The fate of the crew of the schooner is still unknown. The first news received of the disaster in this city was when the steamer Humboldt, from Brazil, arrived at her dock in Brooklyn having on board the twelve survivors of the catastrophe, which she had picked up at daybreak.

Saved by the Humboldt.

Capt. Black, of the Humboldt, said that at daybreak his ship was off Barnegat light. Suddenly from their off port bow came a cry for help. Peering in that direction through the mist of the early morning the officers of the Humboldt saw three masts sticking out of the water, and clinging to the yards and rigging people were seen. Quickly a boat was lowered and rowed to the unfortunate people. There were twelve of them—all sailors—clinging to the spars, and their joy was unspeakable when they were taken in the boat. They all belonged to the steamship Vizcaya, and their names are as follows:

Felipe Hazas, first officer; Gabriel Covas, second officer; Francisco Seera, first engineer; Dr. Andres Rico, surgeon; Sereno Carlos, F. Lopez, Juan Seyjas, Angel Leon, Jose Mendiuna Camerro, Ramon Martinez, Ramon Perez and P. Arellano, seamen.

CAPT. ALLEN'S DEFENSE.

He Believes There Was No Lookout on the Vizcaya.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 4.—Capt. John Allen, of the ill fated coastwise coal schooner Cornelius Hargrave, whose collision with the Spanish passenger steamship Vizcaya off Barnegat Thursday night resulted in the sinking of both ships and the loss of many lives, denies that he did not do his full duty as the commanding officer of the Hargrave. "I think my first mate's accounts of the cause of the collision is mainly correct," he said, "but I can't say that I agree with him regarding the action of the Vizcaya's officers. My opinion is that there was not any lookout on the Vizcaya at all. The disaster was due to the carelessness of the officers on the Spanish steamship. So far as I am concerned, I adhered to maritime law and did my duty to the letter. If there had been a lookout on the Vizcaya I really don't see how there could have been a collision.

"We saw the green lights of the steamer several miles away about at half hour before the disaster occurred. Our red lights, which were in perfect order, were burning. When Perring informed me that a steamer was in sight I went on deck. The steamship was running at twelve knots an hour, and we were going along at about seven knots. Being a sailing vessel and on the starboard side, we had the right of way. The steamer pressed down upon us. Feeling that something was wrong, I took an extraordinary precaution of having a torch waved, but the steamer kept bearing down upon us. Then I jumped for the steam whistle and sounded it. Here the Vizcaya people seemed to realize the danger and the steamship's course was changed, but it was too late. Both vessels were so large that neither could veer about in an instant. We struck her amidships. That's how it all happened. It was gross carelessness on board the Vizcaya. I hear that I have been accused of having deserted Second Mate Walker and Lookout Harry Gainer; that I intentionally left them on the sinking vessel. That is not true. Walker was ordered to take charge of the boat so that the Spaniards could not steal it. When we pushed off from the sinking vessel neither Walker nor Gainer was around.

"It was their fault that they did not get into the boat. After we had left the Hargraves I heard Walker yelling to me. I yelled back for him and Gainer to jump overboard, and we would pick them up. You see, if we had gone back to the sinking schooner the Spaniards would have made a rush to get into the boat, and undoubtedly all of us would have been drowned. If Walker and Gainer had jumped overboard then we would have picked them up. I think I did what was right."

Capt. Allen will remain in the city for a couple of days and then will start for his home at Fall River, Mass. The Cornelius Hargraves had some twenty owners, of whom Capt. Allen is one. They claim that their total loss will be $64,000, the insurance on the vessel being very light.

Discord in the Choir.

Drilling a volunteer choir is the most exasperating work ever undertaken by a human being. In the first place it is morally certain that at least half a dozen members think they know more than the leader, and two or three are always better informed than the man who wrote the music, so they offer, with cheerful alacrity, the most idiotic suggestions as to the manner in which it should be performed, and feel much aggrieved if their ideas are not acted on. Then the women are always either so devoted to each other that they keep up a constant chatter when they should be singing or listening to the leader's direction, or are quarreling and "put each other out."

They are not responsible for all the trouble, but when they do quarrel they generally manage to enlist the men in the service of both sides, and the first thing the leader knows one half his choir has quit and the other half is about to do so because they are not numerous enough to make a creditable chorus. A choir leader says: "I have gone into church on Sunday morning and found six or eight members sitting in the congregation, instead of in their places, and the rest glaring at them from the organ stand. It is fun for them and for the people, but it's death to the leader."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

COLUMBIA'S POPULATION

The Grand Total Announced By the Census Bureau.

62,480,540 PEOPLE ON THE LIST.

An Increase of Over 12,000,000 Since the Count of 1880—New York State Leads Again in Population—The Various States and Their Increase Since 1880.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The census office has announced the population of the United States, as shown by the first count of persons and families, exclusive of white persons in Indian Territory, Indians on reservations and Alaska, to be 62,480,540. These figures may be slightly changed by later and more exact compilations, but such changes will not be material. In 1880 the population was 50,155,872. The absolute increase of the population in ten years intervening was 12,324,757 and the percentage of increase was 24.57. In 1870 the population was stated as 38,558,371. According to these figures the absolute increase in the decade between 1870 and 1880 was 11,597,412 and the percentage of increase was 30.08. The bulletin announcing these figures is addressed to Secretary Noble and signed by Superintendent Porter. It says:

Superintendent Porter Explains.

"Upon their face these figures show that the population has increased between 1880 and 1890 only 727,345 more than between 1870 and 1880, while the rate of increase has apparently diminished from 30.08 to 24.57 per cent. If these figures were derived from correct data they would indeed be disappointing. Such a reduction in the rate of increase in the face of the enormous immigration during the past ten years would argue a great diminuation in the fecundity of the population or a corresponding increase in its death rate. These figures are, however, easily explained when the character of the data used is understood. It is well known, the fact having been demonstrated by extensive and thorough investigation, that the census of 1870 was grossly deficient in the southern states, so much so as not only to give an exaggerated rate of increase of the population between 1870 and 1880 in these states, but to affect very materially the rate of increase in the country at large.

The Census of 1880.

"These omissions were not the fault, nor were they within the control of the census office. The census of 1880 was taken under a law which the superintenden, Gen. Francis A. Walker, characterized as 'clumsy, antiquated and barbarous,' the census office had no power over its enumerators, save a barren protest, and this right was even questioned in some quarters."

New York Leads, as in 1880.

The bulletin contains a statement showing the relative rank of states and territories in population. As in 1880, New York still heads the list, and is followed by Pennsylvania. Ohio and Illinois have exchanged places. Of the other changes in the list the most marked are those of Texas, which rises from No. 11 to No. 7; Kentucky, which drops from 8 to 11; Minnesota, which rises from 26 to 20; Nebraska, which rises from 30 to 26; Maryland, which drops from 23 to 27; Colorado, which rises from 35 to 31; Vermont, which drops from 32 to 36; Washington, which rises from 42 to [illegible]; Delaware, which drops from 38 to 42; Nevada, which drops from 43 to 49, and Arizona, which drops from 44 to 48. The average change in rank is 2.2 places.

* Decrease.

Vermont and Nevada Fall Back.

Vermont and Nevada are two states that show a decrease in population during the decade. In the former there has been a trifling absolute decrease, while Nevada shows an absolute diminution in population of 17,939, or nearly 29 per cent., leaving it in population the smallest of all the states.

Governor Hill's Protest.

ALBANY, Nov. 1.—Governor Hill has written a long letter to Secretary Noble protesting against the denial of Mayor Grant's request for a recount of New York city's population, founded upon the secretary's disbelief in the accuracy of the municipal census.

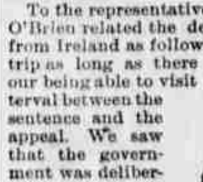
After arguing and quoting the law to prove that Secretary Noble can order a recount if he so wills, Governor Hill says the secretary's belief in the correctness of the federal census is not shared by the people of New York. He adds:

"Nor do the people of that city appear to share your belief in the unimpeachable character of the federal enumerators. This is a time for plain words. Every enumerator selected to count the inhabitants of that great Democratic city was a partisan of the party now in control of the national government, appointed for past political service and upon the recommendation of their local party leaders."

THE FUGITIVES ARRIVE.

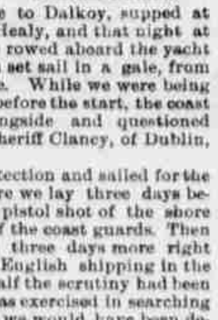
Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien Reach America in Safety.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Mr. William O'Brien, M. P., and his wife; Mr. John Dillon, M. P., J. D. Sullivan, M. P., and his wife and Timothy Harrington arrived here Sunday on the steamer La Champagne. A reception committee representing the united Irish societies of New York, accompanied by several hundred members of the National league and the various Irish societies, met them at Quarantine. Upon the arrival of the steamer at her dock a reception was held on her deck and at 11:30 the visitors were driven to the Hoffman house. The party had scarcely reached the hotel when Governor Hill called upon them. The governor warmly welcomed them to the city and state, expressed his hearty sympathy with the cause they represented and signed his name to the address of welcome that had been prepared by the Irish societies. Mayor Grant also called and expressed sentiments similar to those of the governor and also appended his name to the address of welcome.



JOHN DILLON.

To the representatives of the press Mr. O'Brien related the details of his escape from Ireland as follows: "We delayed our trip as long as there was any chance of our being able to visit America in the interval between the sentence and the appeal. We saw that the government was deliberately eating away that interval, and as soon as that became evident we came away. The plan was simplicity itself. We went out of the front door of a conspicuous house in Dublin without any disguise at all. We drove in a friend's carriage to Dalkey, supped at the house of Mr. Healy, and that night at midnight we were rowed aboard the yacht St. Patrick, which set sail in a gale, from Kingstown at once. While we were being provisioned, just before the start, the coast guard came alongside and questioned Capt. Murphy. Sheriff Clancey, of Dublin, was with us.



WILLIAM O'BRIEN.

"We escaped detection and sailed for the Welsh coast, where we lay three days becalmed, within a pistol shot of the shore and in full view of the coast guards. Then we were becalmed three days more right in the course of English shipping in the Channel, and if half the scrutiny had been given to us that was exercised in searching outbound vessels we would have been detected sure. We reached the French coast in the evening of the seventh day and went to Paris."

Mr. O'Brien then read a statement of the object of the visit of himself and Mr. Dillon, which is made at the desire and upon the authority of Mr. Parnell, and predicted that a general election would occur in Great Britain in less than two years. After remaining here until Nov. 4 the visitors will hold meetings in Philadelphia, Boston, Newark and Jersey city. They will then hold a series of meetings here and afterwards divide into two or three parties and make a tour of the country.

The Swallows Are Wrong.

The British glowworm is steadily decreasing in numbers, and entomologists fear that it will become extinct as well as extinguished. This is due to the reckless system of nest lighting practiced by swallows. These ingenious birds fasten glowworms to the sides of their nests, but inasmuch as the glowworm resents this liberty by an early death it takes an enormous quantity of glowworms to light one fashionable nest during the season.

The members of the British association (ornithological section) are discussing the possibility of inducing the swallows to light their nests with electricity derived from the backs of British cats, but if the birds decline to adopt the electric light—and it is only too probable that they will decline—the early extirpation of the glowworm seems to be a melancholy certainty.—Paris Herald.

SECRETARY NOBLE'S REPLY.

A Scathing Letter to Governor Hill on Census Matters.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Secretary Noble has addressed the following communication to Governor Hill in reply to his recent letter urging a recount of the city of New York:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3, 1890.

Hon. David B. Hill:

DEAR SIR—Your communication of the 31st ult. was duly received. There had already been delivered to me a letter from the mayor of the city of New York on the same subject—the claim of that city to a recount of its population by the United States census authorities. While you have added the weight of the governor's office to the complaint, you have failed to add to those already presented by the mayor a single suggestion of the slightest value. It was wholly unnecessary for you to remind me of the provisions of the constitution of the United States relating to enumeration and apportionment of representatives or the electoral college; or that provision of the census law allowing amendments and recounts. All of this was very familiar law to me, and your quotation of it might have been copied from my last opinion delivered to the mayor, and which you state you had read in the newspapers.

No Exhortation Needed.

Neither did I need any exhortation upon the subject of fair apportionments, as an equal apportionment throughout the United States, and the perfect freedom and equality of the individual elector is a reform to which I have given my earnest support, and which is worthy that of every public officer and every individual citizen. Had you read the correspondence with the mayor, whose immediate concern this business has been, you would have found your topic already exhausted. Such apportionment you may, however, be reminded would certainly and permanently promote the success of the party to which you incorrectly say all the enumerators of the city of New York belong.

The Imputations of Fraud.

It is much to be regretted that in a letter to me when acting upon a purely official matter you, as governor, should speak as a partisan and impute a corrupt purpose to the census enumerators to secure party advantage by diminishing the count of the city of New York.

Your imputation against the enumerators and the census work is so entirely gratuitous and unfounded as to be slanderous, as you should know that your abusive course could not tend to promote that fair and judicial consideration I have been disposed to give to the application of the mayor. Your charge imputing fraudulent motives to others rather suggests that as your party thinks an increased population would inure to its advantage the count of the police (taken as it has been since the police board of New York has been made partisan) needs the very closest scrutiny and analysis. The charges now being made in New York against the city government by Democrats are not of a kind to relieve any work done by it from the gravest suspicion of reckless partisanship.

He Holds the Governor Responsible.

Your accusations, heretofore confined to interviews and stump speeches, began even before the enumeration was announced. Some of the Democratic newspapers in New York and elsewhere made the census enumerators' work very difficult by exciting the prejudice of ignorance against it, and it is to be remarked that you, as early as the 1st of July last, made an address before the Hendricks club, at Indianapolis, in which you bitterly assailed the census office and its work, and asserted, without any knowledge whatever, the same evil purpose you now send to me officially. You then repeated the newspaper criticisms and spoke of the "great army of inquisitors sent prying into our houses asking impertinent questions, making false records," etc., and you did not fail to notice the possible effect of all this in raising popular distrust and disinclination to respond to the enumerators. You did not succeed in these efforts to any considerable degree, but you are largely responsible for any inaccuracies that may exist.

"Continuous and Partisan Assaults."

You set the example by denouncing a law of congress, and thus suggested its violation by your less acute political followers. Your early and continuous partisan assaults upon the census have had necessarily a motive which is easily discerned. That motive points to an unjust end which I certainly shall not promote. It is but just that there should be no delay in completing the census that the purposes for which it is intended may be accomplished.

You further asserted in the speech mentioned that "it (the Republican party) will not repudiate that even more plainly declared policy of breaking the power of the solid south in presidential as well as congressional elections by deliberately ignoring the vast increase of population in that section of the country during the last decade." The truth is, no complaint whatever has been received from any southern state, as a state, against the census; and the only serious claim of an erroneous diminution of population and representation by a state came from the Republican state of Oregon. Out of the 2,781 counties in all the states and territories, there has been no complaint whatever, save from Multnomah county in Oregon. There has not been a complaint from any southern city that has not been promptly and satisfactorily adjusted without a recount, save at Columbus Ga., and there was found an increase of 1,138 only.

A Question of Patronage, He Says.

You seem to be against a census to be taken even by your own state, for you vetoed a bill passed by its legislature in 1885, and which was required by its constitution. It is reasonable to suppose that the patronage you seem to think so influential in political affairs would not have fallen in your hands, or, judging you by the standard you apply to others, your official action would have been just the opposite of what it was.

As I have demonstrated, the great body of the people of the United States are content with the census, and are uninfluenced by partisan assaults such as yours.

Sorry He Had to Do It.

Sustained by their confidence, I shall proceed with the discharge of my official duties in this and all other business coming before me, carefully and justly, correcting what I may be convinced is wrong, and fearlessly adhering to what I believe to be right. I regret the necessity of addressing the chief magistrate of the leading state of the Union in the terms I have employed, but I find my justification in the reckless intemperance of language you have seen fit to use, language which is lacking as much in truth as it is in the dignity befitting your great office, which in the past has been filled by eminent men of both political parties of New York. Upon the merits of the mayor's application I shall reply to him. Yours truly, JOHN W. NOBLE, Secretary.

FOUR WERE KILLED.

A Fatal Smashup on the D., L. and W. Near Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The Philadelphia and New York express on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, while descending the steep grade near Rock cut, three miles from this city, last evening crashed into a coal train standing on a switch and waiting for the track to be cleared for its passage southward. Both locomotives were completely wrecked and the baggage and mail cars were crushed to pieces. Of the other cars on the passenger train, four in number, three were thrown from the track, the force of the collision hurling them into a position almost at right angles with the rails. The single Pullman car, which was next to the mail car, kept its place.

Michael Burke, of this city, engineer of the passenger train, and J. W. Doyle, of Great Bend, Pa., engineer on the coal train, were killed outright with their firemen, Jerry Lee, of this city, and Merton Fernan, of Great Bend.

The four men were buried under the wreck. Doyle was dug out by the train hands, with the assistance of some of the passengers. The other three remained in the wreck all night.

As by a miracle none of the passengers were killed and only one of them, Mrs. Thomas Corcoran, of No. 21 Myrtle avenue, Buffalo, was seriously injured. Mrs. Corcoran was on her way home from Cortland. She had two ribs broken and her right wrist was dislocated. She also sustained severe injuries to her spine and her left shoulder was badly bruised. She is now at St. Joseph's hospital in this city, and her chances of recovery are very doubtful.

Michael Tierney, of Great Bend, Pa., head brakeman on the coal train, was also badly injured. At the time of the collision he was in the cab with Doyle and Fernan, waiting for the passenger train to pass. He was buried in the wreck, but was got out in a few minutes. Tierney was so badly scalded that the skin peeled off from his right side and hip. His face and head were bruised and his right knee was seriously injured. It is thought that he may recover.

A. E. Kimball, of Oswego, N. Y., a brakeman on the passenger train, and Baggageman W. H. Coopernall, of the same place, were buried under the baggage car, but neither was seriously hurt. C. C. Darby, of Cortland, N. Y., a postal clerk of Syracuse, president of the State Liquor Dealers' association, sustained slight injuries.

The wildest excitement prevailed for an hour or two after the news of the disaster reached this city, owing to the fact the railroad authorities telephoned that the cars had taken fire, and asked the assistance of the fire department. This information happily proved to be erroneous.

Among the passengers was Henry Weston Edwards, of London, England, the famous traveler, who has made the circuit of the globe three times, and who accompanied Nellie Bly on a large part of her record breaking journey. Mr. Edwards, who is way home from China, left here this evening for New York, where he will take a steamer to-morrow afternoon for Europe. The accident was caused by a misplaced switch. The switchman, it is said, had been in the employ of the company only since Oct. 29.

JOLIET, Ills., Nov. 4.—The Polack assassin from Braidwood, Joseph Novak, under sentence of death, tried to batter his brains out in his cell during a brief absence of his keeper. A physician was called, who sewed up the wound in the culprit's head, and said he would recover.

Sweeping Victories all over the Country!

Democrats Carry the State by 17.000 Majority.

BOSSISM DEFEATED.

"TURN ON THE LIGHT."

The result of Tuesday's election will prove to be the death knell of the Republican party. Robert E. Pattison is elected Governor of Pennylvania, by 17,000 majority. The balance of the ticket is in doubt.

Matthew Stanley Quay will have to try some other year before he owns "a little governor of his own," and Senator Delamater will have to postpone doing the things he promised in the Bloomsburg Opera House to do, "when I am Governor."

All over the country great Democratic majorities are reported, even Wisconsin and Massachusetts being claimed by them.

Secretary Blaine and Candidate Delamater vehemently asserted that if the Republicans lost Pennsylvania this year, the Presidential campaign of 1892 would certainly result in Democratic victory. If they are not false prophets, we have killed two birds with one stone.

We congratulate Mr. D. A. Beckley on the magnificent results of his two week's canvass for Delamater in this county. Under his skillull leadership the republicans have succeeded in keeping the democratic majority in Columbia county down to something more than 2,800, which though it is greater than ever before, is still not so large as it might have been if Mr. Beckley had spent a whole month from his office in Harrisburg showing the local republicans how to run things.

Reliable News.

Listen to the cheerful warblings of the Philadelphia Press of Wednesday, the day after the election, bearing in mind the fact that Pattison is elected by a fair majority, now conceded by the same paper.

"After one of the hardest fought battles in its history the Republican party has again carried Pennsylvania, and Senator Delamater has been elected Governor by a majority which promises to reach, if it does not considerably exceed, 25,000. To Governor-elect Delamater, who at the beginning put the campaign upon a broad and high plane, and who turned back a stream of vicious personal defamation, and whose work throughout has been characterized by the most exalted motives as well as untiring energy in behalf of his party, this victory is largely due.

Election Notes.

William McAleer defeats Richard Vaux for congress in Philadelphia, Third district.

Mortimer F. Elliott is elected to Congress in the 16th district.

Russell Karns has a majority of 150 in Sullivan county, for the legislature.

John B. Reynolds, democrat, is probably defeated by Geo. H. Shonk for congress in Luzerne county.

Berks, Northampton, and York counties are the only ones that give larger democratic majorities than Columbia.

Warwick democrat defeats McKinly in Ohio.

Foul mouthed Cannon Republican, of Illinois, is defeated.

Lodge of Massachusetts, Republican, the author of the force bill is defeated.

Ammerman democrat defeats Congressman Scranton.

Crawford County, Delamater's county which gave Beaver 1100 majority in 1886, went democratic, and Delamater's own town, Meadville, gives large democratic gains.

The democrats will have 130 majority in the next Congress. A gain of 150 over the last Congres. One of the first acts of the new Congress should be to reject Reed.

Prohibition In Nebraska.

REV. DR. L. ZAHNER'S VIEWS.

The following is quoted from the Omaha Bee:

At a recent meeting of the Omaha ministerial union, Rev. Mr. Holt introduced a set of resolutions which recommended that the churches of the state observe Sunday, November 2, as a prohibitory amendment field day." and that an appropriate sermon on the duty of Christian voters in regard to the pending election be preached, and the sinews of war be colected to fight anti-prohibitionists at the polls.

To obtain the trend of opinion among the clergy regarding the resolution a representative of The Bee called on several eminent clergymen of various denominations and asked them whether they would observe the day recommended.

The first gentleman seen was Rev. T. S. Fitzgerald, S. J., of St. John's church at Creighton college. After reading the resolution, the reverend gentleman said:

"We have nothing whatever to do with that resolution. We regard the question of prohibition as a political one without question, and as such, one entirely out of place in the pulpit. If I were approached on the subject and asked to call a meeting for such a purpose I should simply refuse. I shall ignore the question of such a field day. As a church, we will not move in the matter I am very sure."

Rev. W. J. Harsha said that he had been at the meting in question but, as the subject was one which he could not consistently countenance, he had quietly withdrawn.

"I will not support it." he said, "as it is a political question, and as such the tenets of the Presbyterian church will not allow its introduction into the pulpit. I believe in allowing every man to vote as his conscience dictates, and I propose to advocate nothing in the pulpit of a political nature. Several of the prominent members of my church in session denounced the whole matter, and you may say that my church will not act in the matter."

Rev. Dr. Zahner, rector of All Saints' church had seen the resolution in point, and, replying to the reporter's question said: "No, this church will not observe the day as recommended, but the presiding bishop has sent out a request to the clergy that November 16 be set apart as a day on which the great subject of temperance be presented to the people. If prohibition be adopted, I do not think it would last long. It could not be enforced and eventually be killed by public sentiment. If prohibition would prohibit, I should be for it and I think that before many years the question will solve itself, and future generations wonder that their progressive [illegible] enlightened ancestors entered into such a fight. Personally I hope that the amendment will poll a vote large enough to awaken a temperance feeling of the right sort amongst the people. The prohibition movement is seeking success upon a political and fanatical basis, and as such the church cannot support it. With reference to the resolution in regard to a field-day it met with a very cool reception, Mr. Holt Seeking to be its chief champion."

Rev. G. T. Glauber of St. Mary Magdalene's church, said:

"As a church, we have nothing whatever to do with the movement. We believe in temperance in all things, but the Roman Catholic church has nothing to do with politics and will advocate no political question in its pulpits. We will not support the prohibition field day resolution."

Mr. Townsend is a thorough Democrat and a progressive citizen, and his intelligent services to the public have been frequently recognized. We hope that he can be induced to retain the position of chairman, though it has been a tax upon his time.

Through hasty proof reading and careless corrections the address of Chairman Townsend as it appeared in this paper was somewhat mixed in the first sentence. The ommission of the word "of" and the insertion of a semi colon before the word "unscrupulous" makes it appear as Mr. Townsend wrote it, In justice to him we make the correction though his well known literary ability makes it unnecessary to do so, as any one would know that the error was that of the printer and not of the writer.

The Rage For Colored Gems.

Within the last five years there has been a gradually increasing demand for colored gems, until now there is a rage for these jewels. It began, Messrs Bailey, Banks & Biddle, the great jewelers of Philadelphia say, with the Ruby which was a very popular stone, and is yet. The Sapphire, of which there are several colors instead of one, as generally supposed followed. Then came the Emeralds, and the semi-precious stones, that is, stones which have not the hardness nor specific gravity of the precious ones. Among the former class which are very popular are the Spinel of various colors, American and Indian Tourmaline, Topazes and others. They are effectively used with Diamonds in bracelets, rings and in large articles of jewelry, such as brooches and pendants.

We make a comparison of above table with the vote for Governor in 1886, which shows a democratic gain in every township but Centralia and Roaringcreek. Centralia loses 119 and Roaringcreek 21. The prohibition vote in the county is 248, a gain of 30 over 1886, and a loss of 10 over the vote of 1888.

Scrofula

Is the most ancient and most general of all diseases. Scarcely a family is entirely free from it, while thousands everywhere are its suffering slaves. Hood's Sarsaparilla has had remarkable success in curing every form of scrofula. The most severe and painful running sores, swellings in the neck or goitre, humor in the eyes, causing partial or total blindness, yield to the powerful effects of this medicine. It thoroughly removes every trace of impurity from the blood and builds up the weakened system.

"My little daughter's life was saved, as we believe, by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before she was six months old she had 7 running scrofula sores. One physician advised the amputation of one of her fingers, to which we refused assent. When we began giving her Hood's Sarsaparilla, a marked improvement was noticed and by a continued use of it her recovery was complete. And she is now, being seven years old, strong and healthy." B. C. Jones, Alna, Lincoln County, Me.

It will be sold together or in parcels as may be deemed most expedient. The sale will be by the acre. A draft of the land with the improvements roads, &c., can be seen in the hands of the executor at the banking house of the Bloomsburg Banking Company, where also inquirers may learn terms of sale, &c.

After trying it we named it the "Lightning," because it struck us as being the right name for such a

The first snow of the season in this section fell on Tuesday.

Miss Ella Fox has been quite seriously ill with a fever, in Philadelphia. Late reports say she is improving slowly.

The Berwick Borough Council is advertising for electric light.

The office of Clerk of the Courts in Schuylkill county pays over $7000 a year.

The new gasoline street lamps are working well thus far and give a good light. It remains to be seen how they hold out.

Catarrh indicates impure blood, and to cure it, take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies the blood. Sold by all druggists.

Now the merchants should commence their holiday advertising. Christmas will soon be here.

The report of the Madison township Sunday school Convention, and the proceedings of the Reform conention are crowded out this week. They will appear in next issue.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Funston have made many additions and improvements in their home on Rock street at Mrs. A. A. Butler's.

Judge M. G. Hughes of Catawissa, spends much of his time in his elegant bachelor quarters. He is variously engaged in business matters.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Mr. Arthur A. Clark and Miss Jennie Evans, at St. Paul's church on November 1[illegible], at 12 o'clock.

The steeple on the new Presbyterian church is stately in appearance, and beautiful in its proportions. It can be seen from any point in town.

Henry Shepherd, the chef at Phillips' Cafe, is at his post again. The delicious odor of cooking makes one hungry in passing by. Tickets for twenty-one meals can be procured by regular boarders for $3.50

The Ku-Klux is abroad. One night last week there was hung on the Court House fence a muslin containing skulls and cross bones, and these words, "To the Council, Give us better light."

The remaining stock in the store recently owned by Stephen Baldy at Catawissa, was sold at public sale by Geo. E. Elwell, trustee, last week Thursday to Watson & Co. of Philadelphia for $1083.

Tickets for the balance of the Course of Lectures can be obtained at Dentler's for $1.50. Do not fail to attend the illustrated lecture of W. M. R. French at Opera House Nov. 19.

William C. Johnston, Register and Recorder of Mountour county, had a slight attack of heart failure last week Monday, in his office at the court house in Danville. He was taken to his home when he soon recovered.

It was once supposed that scrofula could not be eradicated from the system; but the marvelous results produced by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla disprove this theory. The reason is, this medicine is the most powerful blood-purifier ever discovered.

An exchange says it is currently reported that Albert Lewis's mission to Europe is to obtain a lease of the North Mountain timber tract, recently sold by Col. Ricketts to a London syndicate. Mr. Lewis is just the man to handle this vast business, for he has had the experience, and has the push and energy to prosecute this magnitudinous operation to a successful end. —Echo.

There may be some fun in some of the pranks that are sometimes played on Hallow E'en, but the wholesale stealing of property, and destruction of gates and steps and everything else that hands can be laid on, is neither smart nor funny, and the perpetrators of much of the inexcusable conduct of last Friday night ought to be prosecuted for malicious mischief and punished to the full extent of the law. Fun is one thing, but a criminal disregard of the rights of others is not excusable even on Hallow E'en.

M. A. Scanlan, the young Irish comedian of a type pleasantly familiar on the stage, appeared at Forepaugh's Theatre yesterday afternoon before a large audience. He played the title part in the Celtic drama of "Neil Agrah," and met with quite a cordial welcome. The supporting company was particularly brilliant. Samuel E. Ryan, Miss Sadie Scanlan and several others acquitted themselves very creditably. A little more naturalness and force and a little less sententiousness would improve the work of two or three of the principal performers.—Philadelphia Ledger, Oct. 7, 1890.

The above will appear at the Bloomsburg Opera House, Friday Nov. 7. Do not fail to be present. You will miss a treat.

The watercress is a weed, pure and simple. It can never be anything else. Efforts to cultivate and produce a better and more delicate species have been made, and signally failed. Under artificial treatment it loses the faint, piquant mustard flavor that is its especial charm, and assumes much of the hot, pungent taste of the horseradish. It flourishes for nearly nine months of the year, and as it is constantly renewing itself, the large, coarse leaves of the old plant may be left to wither, and only the young, delicate stems picked. It will not bear cooking of any kind, but eaten raw, with a little salt, and fresh bread and butter, it is—well, try it.

The first of the Star Course entertainments, by the New York Philharmonic Club in the Opera House, so far as the enjoyment of those who were fortunate enough to be present was concerned, was a success, but, while the audience was made up of a number of our most cultured and intelligent people, the absence of the comparatively large proportion of those who would enjoy this character of entertainment shows a lack of appreciation of the efforts of the committee whose object is to give the citizens of Bloomsburg and vicinity the opportunity of hearing the very best talent the country affords. The labors of the committee should be appreciated and their entertainments liberally patronized.

The illustrated lecture of Prof. W. M. R. French to be given in the Opera House Nov. 19th is highly recommended by the Press.

Tickets for the balance of the course can be obtained at Dentler's for $1.50. Tickets for any one lecture will cost 75c.

There are yet four entertainments to be given as follows:

W. M. R. French, Nov. 19; John R. Clarke, Dec. 5; Lotus Glee Club, Jan 9; R. J. Burdette, Feb. 9th.

The best seats are not all taken and those who purchase course tickets now, can secure very desirable seats by having them marked before Nov. 19.

Closing the Campaign.

Last week Thursday a large delegation of democrats went to Catawissa on the P. & R. at 6 35 p. m. to attend the club meeting there. There were over one hundred besides the Bloom Band. This crowd of visitors was unexpected to the Catawissa democrats and evidently pleased them. The Catawissa Band was also on hand, and the procession marched to the hall where eloquent addresses were made by Grant Herring, John W. Gorman of Nanticoke, and Fred T. Ikeler. Dr. J. K. Robbins presided The hall was packed and there was much enthusiasm. In the procession was a banner with Pattison's picture on one side and the words "Our next Governor," and on the other side "Turn on the light," This was carried by C. F. Harder, a life long republican. The Bloom party came home by the midnight train, and made the town resound with their cheers.

On Friday night the Opera House Bloomsburg was packed full by an audience that came to listen to Hon. Charles S. Wolfe and J. Thompson Baker of Lewisburg. Both speeches were able and interesting.

A Marriage Certificate Takes a Ride With the Tornado.

Mr. Bruce Ash and his wife, a recently married couple lived in a comfortable cottage in the northern part of this county near Benton. A few weeks ago when the destructive tornado passed over the county Mr. Ash's home was literally carried away. Furniture, stoves, bedding, books, papers, as well as the house itself all were gone. Nothing was left but the foundation and a few pieces of china-ware. A stove was left sitting on a neighboring hill.

Recently Miss Myra Welsh of Orangeville was visiting relatives at Dallas near Wilkes Barre, where in the course of conversation the fact was mentioned that a marriage certificate of comparatively recent date had been picked up in a neighboring field. Further conversation revealed the fact that the groom's name was Bruce Ash, the bride's name Laura Richie, and the minister's name, Rev. Boone of Benton, whereupon Miss Welsh recognized all the parties, related the circumstances of their loss, and requested them to forward the certificate to the owners. The certificate had evidently taken a ride with the tornado, and been dropped at Dallas.

We learn that many good people of the county are contributing to a fund to build a new house for Mr. and Mrs. Ash.

M. A. Scanlan, with his successful and romantic drama, in four acts, entitled, "Neil Agrah" will appear in the Opera House, Friday evening, Nov. 7th. The Times of Brooklyn thus speaks of their appearance at that city on September 2nd:

M. A. Scanlan and his excellent company opened their season last night at the Lyceum Theatre to an enthusiastic audience. The house was packed from parquet to gallery. The play, "Neil Agrah," is a picturesque drama of the '98 order, depicting the stirring scenes of that period. Mr. Scanlan's voice was in splendid condition, and as "Neil Agrah" he did some neat acting in his graceful style. His brogue is perfection itself. The supporting company is of the best, and "Neil Agrah" with this star and company at its head will prove a howling success.

DR. A. P. HELLER.

Through the kindness of a friend we have been furnished the following sketch of the late Dr. A. P. Heller.

Dr. A. P. Heller was born in Hemlock Township, April 9, 1829, the only son of James and Hannah Heller. His parents moved to Shinn Street, Now East Millville, in 1839. When along in his teens he worked on the farm for John K. Eves during the summer season and attended public school in the winter. At the age of 19 he commenced teaching school during the winter and continued to work on the farm in the summer, till 1852 when at the age of 23 he commenced the study of medicine under Dr. P. John and graduated 22nd Feb. 1864.

He commenced the practice of his profession at Unionville, Carbon County, Pa On Nov. 28, 1854, he married Susan W. Eves, daughter of Benjamin Eves. They lived at Unionville till the spring of 1857, when they moved back to Millville where he practiced medicine as the successor of his preceptor, Dr. P. John. Dr. Heller in company with C. W. Eves engaged for a few years in the mercantile and lumber business, under the firm name of Eves & Heller. After the Doctor bought the David Eves farm at Millville and moved upon it, the firm of Eves & Heller was desolved Since then the Doctor has lived upon his farm improving its buildings and its fertility, and practicing his profession

On the first of Feby. 1887, while attending a patient he had occasion to go into the barn yard, he was then gored by a malicious heifer; he did not think of being seriously hurt and made several other visits the same day and attended the meeting of the Society of Good Intent in the evening. The day following his condition from the hurt became alarmingly serious. He grew better and then much worse so that the medical attendants pronounced his case incurable and that he could live but a few days at most. His family and friends sorrowed without hope but his days of unusefulness were not finished. He began to recover. H. S. Christian having at that time just graduated with the highest honor of his class returned to Millville and entered into partnership with Dr. Heller in the practice of Medicine. Mr. Heller's health continued to improve and about the middle of May he walked out doors for the first time since Feb. 1st. He soon was able to resume the practice of his profession much to the gratification of his family and friends. He actively continued his practice and was on his way to visit his daughter-in-law who was seriously ill, when he died.

Dr. Heller was a useful man and the community has been greatly blest by his life. He could be counted in for any undertaking having for its object the good of the community. He served his township as school director, was a Trustee of the Greenwood Seminary Co., an active member of the Friend's Monthly Meeting's Educational Committee, Vice President and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Millville and a Vice President of the Columbia County Agricultural Society at the time of his death. He was an active Republican, and a consistant member of the Religious Society of his choice.

In reviewing his life we find much to admire. As a husband and father he was devoted and true, as a friend and neighbor many will testify to his frankness, his genialty and his liberality and kindness, as trustee, a committeeman or an officer he was always faithfully active in the discharge of the duties devolving upon him, as a physician he was candid and honest, alway striving to cure, rather than continue the case. The recital of the circumstances of his sudden death will interest his many friends.

On Thursday, Oct. 30, 1890 at 5 o'clock a. m., he left his home to drive to Bloomsburg On his way down the king bolt of his buggy broke. He was thrown from the buggy into the muddy street at Eyersgrove, his horse ran down to T. C. Wilson's with front wheels of the buggy. The Doctor called Jacob Welliver to get the use of his telephone to have his son Frank bring him another horse and buggy, Frank got the message immediately and in great haste supplied the Doctor with another horse and buggy with which he proceeded to Bloomsburg in time for the Republican mass meeting at half seven that morning. During the meeting he occupied a chair on the stage. After the adjournment of the meeting he rode with Rev. D. J. Waller to the depot to see the departure of the train They drove back to the store of I. W. Hartman & Sons. The Dr. got out and went into the store to buy a pair of gloves as a birth day present for his granddaughter Margaret Viola. He sat upon a stool paid for the gloves, received his change and put it in his pocket Mr. I. W. Hartman who waited on him stepped to the door and as his back was turned the Dr. fell to the floor dead. Immediately the news spread through town like wild fire and the sad intelligence was sent by telephone, by telegraph and by mail to many friends in many direction by his intimate friends who were in town and had gathered at the scene of his departure.

His funeral took place at the Friend's Meeting House in Millville on Sabbath morning, Nov. 2nd 1890, at 10 o'clock. It was the largest gathering that ever assembled upon those grounds.

The Dr. left a will in care of Jno. W. Eves.

A Spring Medicine.

The druggists claim that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache, discovered by Dr. Silas Lane while in the Rocky Mountains. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50 cents a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

Harvest Home Jubilee and Reopening Sunday School Room.

For a month past the Lutheran S. S. room has been topsy turvy and instead of 300 happy children, the carpenter and mason, and painter and paperer have been busy taking out the old benches, furnaces, partitions, &c. and replacing them with sliding windows, chairs, a handsome paper on ceiling and walls and a refitting generally with a bright Brussels carpet over the entire floor. The rooms will be reopened with a special childrens service next Sunday morning, Luther Sunday. It is Harvest Home Sunday and church and S. S. Room will be handsomely decorated with fruit, grains and flowers. The Pastor Rev. P. A. Heilman will preach a Harvest Sermon in the morning and a Reformation Sermon in the evening. Everybody is welcome.

If Your House is on Fire.

You put water on the burning timbers, not on the smoke. And if you have catarrh you should attack the disease in the blood, not in your nose. Remove the impure cause, and the local effect subsides. To do this, take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, which radically and permanently cures catarrh. It also strengthens the nerves. Be sure to get only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A Lunch and Oyster supper will be served at the Temperance rooms next Friday Eve, Nov. 7th.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held next Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 11th at 3 o'clock.

FOR SALE.—Valuable property, known as the Morris property in Bloomsburg. Apply to Guy Jacoby. 11-7-10t.

The consciousness of having a remedy at hand for croup, pneumonia, sore throat, and sudden colds, is very consoling to a parent. With a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, one feels, in such cases, a sense of security nothing else can give.

Normal School Notes.

Well, one of the lectures of our Course—that of Miss Krarer—is now a thing of the past, and the financial success of the undertaking is fully assured.

Many expressions of entire satisfaction have come to us, and all are loud in their praises of the little lady from Greenland.

But good things go and come; one has gone, and on the evening of Saturday, Nov. 22, there will come to us and the people of our community, one of the finest lectures they will be permitted to hear this season.

Hon. R. G. Horr is one of the few men who discuss the great Labor Question from all its standpoints, giving to both employer and employee, all issues that justly belong to them.

This lecture on Strikes. Strikers, and People who get Struck," should be heard by every laboring man in Bloomsburg.

It is not a discussion upon a political basis all, but a plain, practical, common sense talk with capitalist and labor. It abounds in the most caustic humor, and yet withal, contains valuable lessons for every one.

Season tickets for the remainder of the course, can be had at Dentler's shoe store for $1 25.

Last week we enrolled five new students and have now just about reached the three hundred mark.

Mr. Ed. Caldwell and Samuel Pursel, both of the class of '89, are taking Manual Training on Saturday.

They visited the work-shop and at once said they wanted some of that work. Indeed the more one sees of the nature of the work, and the zeal with which the great body of students enter into it, the more we wonder that our educational eyes were so long holden to the direct benefits of this now new branch of education.

One of the latest and most popular moves 'on the hill," is the centering of all the libraries in one room. The Reading Room has been handsomely shelved, and the School library placed therein.

The Philo Society, acting in the same line, on last Saturday, brought their entire library, consisting of several hundred volumes of choice books into the library, and the Calliepian society, it is expected, will soon do like wise,

The bringing in of these books by the societies, does in no way deprive them of ownership. The books are theirs, but are now placed where all students may be benefitted. It is also the intention of the Principal, Professor Welsh, that all money arising from the lecture course, of each year, over and above actual expense be equally divided between the societies to be expended in books.

The great number of callers who desire to see the Principal, some members of the Faculty, or some student friends, has necessitated the putting in of a system of door-bells, from the main front doors.

This is a great convenience for both the callers and the inmates of our large building.

In some former "Notes" we referred to the movements of the Athletic Association in its various departments, and especially to the making of lawn tennis "courts," These were undertaken almost entirely by the young ladies, and, finding their purses inadequate to meet the expense necessitated in the grading and leveling, they conceived the idea of sending a committee to wait upon the Board of Trustees, kindly asking them for such financial aid as might feel constrained to give.

Imagine the gratification of the young ladies when they were most cordially received, and in every case, rewarded most handsomely. There has indeed, been no "stint of praise" for our large hearted Board, and the ladies say: "Every member of that Board is just as kind as he can be. We had no idea we would get so much money." The truth is, these generous responses from the members of the Board of Trustees, on every occasion, do much to foster and to render more enduring, the many interests and relations of students, teachers, and those of the trustees as well.

Prof. W. M. R. French, Opera House, Nov. 19.

The next of the excellent selection of entertainments furnished by the Bloomsburg Star Course, will be given in the Opera House Nov. 19, by Prof. W. M. R. French Director of the School and Museum of the Art Institute of Chicago. Mr. French illustrates his lectures by means of large impromptu sketches drawn on paper in the presence of the audience, in color and crayon. His lectures are not dry and uninteresting, but full of wit and humor as well as instruction. The wonderful rapidity and freedom with which he dashes off his beautiful pictures enables him to hold the close attention of the audience throughout the entire lecture. He is a genius of the highest order and our people should not miss the opportunity of hearing him.

THE REPUBLICAN CLUB.

ON ELECTION NIGHT, 8 O'CLOCK.

Torches trimmed and filled and waiting,
Bon-fire ready soon to light,
When the news comes in we'll burn them,
Red we'll paint the town to-night.

1 O'CLOCK, A. M

Put away our little torches,
And the band need not come out,
For we're licked so all-fired badly
We don't know what we're about.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

The U. S. Geological Survey.

A TOPOGRAPHICAL SURVEY OF THE COAL FIELDS.

The corps of U. S. engineers now stopping at the Exchange Hotel are engaged in making a topographical survey of Bloomsburg and the surrounding country. This is one of many parties scattered through the coal fields from Harrisburg to Honesdale. This work was begun some years ago by the State geological survey under Prof. Leslie of Lehigh, but after the parties had been in the field three years it was found to be so expensive that the legislature refused to appropriate any more money for the purpose and the notes and data collected by the parties were turned over to the U. S. engineers with the request that the U. S. continue the work. Mr. Robt. D. Cummin is in charge, and he says they expect to complete the field work this season, and the maps will be drawn, engraved and ready for publication in about one year. These maps will necessarily be made on a small scale as the area surveyed will cover over 4000 square miles; but they will include a detail map of all cities and towns, all public roads, railroads, canals and all public works. The topography, or relief, will be expressed in contours of 20 feet interval. The coloring of the sheets will be made consistent with nature as far as possible, the culture in black, the topography (contours) in brown, timber lands in green, and the drainage and water surface in blue.

Few people outside of those directly interested in topography realize the amount of labor and time required in the construction of such maps. The first step is to select a level piece of ground and measure a base line of at least 5 miles in length. These measurements are made with the greatest possible care, compensated steel rods are used and corrections made for every change in temperature. Sometimes it takes a whole party a year to measure one of these lines. After the base is measured large signals are erected at the extremities, and the latitude and longitude of the points are then determined by astronomical observations. Then these points are re-occupied with a theodolite and the primary triangulation begins. Large triangles with the sides ranging from one to twenty-five miles are thrown over the country until sufficient points are determined to start the plane-tables. The area to be surveyed is then divided into atlas sheets of 15' square (Lat. and Long.) and polyconic projection (allowing for the curvature of the earth's surface) are constructed for each of these sheets and the primary points are plotted upon them and the plane-table can then substitute the theodolite. This is called the graphic method. With the plane-table a great many points are determined at shorter range until a complete network of triangles is thrown over the sheet, and at each located point vertical angles are taken to determine the elevations and these different systems of angles are connected with a line of levels run from the mean level of the sea at Perth Amboy. When this is done it is called the control, or skeleton map and the detail work begins. Filling in the detail is largely a matter of common surveying. One small triangle is taken up at a time, the roads are traversed and many prominent points are cut in, from these traverse lines and the topography is sketched in between the located points. Vertical angles for elevations are carried along the traverse lines and the intermediate points in the sketch are determined by aneroid barometers and in this way the small triangle is worked up and then the next one taken up in the same way and so on until the atlas sheet is finished. These maps are expensive, but they are also very useful. For instance, a farmer having such a map can tell at a glance whether water can be taken from a certain stream or pond to his house or over his farm for irrigation purposes without spending a cent for surveying. He can tell the latitude and longitude of his house, its elevation above the sea or of any point on his place. Engineers can often save the cost of preliminary surveys for railroads and canals. Such a map will show by the contours the best route to be taken and construction can begin at once. Geologists cannot make a satisfactory study without such maps, and they are very useful for military purposes and in many other ways. Four of the engineers are now stopping at the Exchange hotel: Robt. D. Cummin, Wm. R. Atkinson, J. J. Mason and R. F. McMillan, all of Washington.

East Benton.

Last Saturday afternoon the democracy of Benton township and vicinity assembled in the large hall of the McHenry house, when the chairman, John S. Kline called the meeting to order and the following officers were elected: President, Hon. Iram Derr; Vice Presidents, B. F. Savage, Esq., William Peterman. Esq. Cyrus Larish, Jacob Woolever, J. K. Grotz, E. J. Albertson, Gus. Everhart and Stephen Drescher; Secretaries, William Krickbaum and John C. Wenner. After music by the band, the Hon. C. R Buckalew was called for, not introduced. Forty-five years ago he was introduced and he has spoken to our people at every important campaign. This fact he emphasized very strongly. He briefly referred to the merits and fitness of the gubernatorial candidates and to the probable results attending the success of either party. His theme was 'Taxation.' He reviewed the 'Mills and McKinley Bills,' and compared in detail several items as they affect the masses in the latter, and how they would have affected the masses had the former become a law. The question of taxation will be a theme for discussion in years to come as it has been in the years past, until the people will learn to vote for their own interests, instead for that of bosses, trusts and corporations. His speech was well received and applauded. When he arose to address the audience the house rang with applause.

We had almost forgotten to mention that many ladies composed part of the audience, and this proves the fact that they also feel the pressure of hard times and the great need of a change in governmental affairs.

Col. Freeze was next called for, who said that the first words that greeted his ear on entering the hall were, that 'forty-five years ago,' the former speaker, Mr. Buckalew, had preached economy and honest government to the people of Columbia County, and that forty years ago, he too had commenced preaching to them the same doctrine and at that time the democrats were referred to by the opposite party as the "dirty shirt democracy," and from it we inferred that by the phrase was meant, the honest, toiling yeomanry of the land, and not starched, manufacturers corporationists, and bosses and boodlers of to day. He spoke chiefly of the State campaign and of the issues entering into the gubernatorial contest. Both speakers retired amid applause.

Perhaps, not in the history of the State of Pennsylvania has there been so interesting and exciting a campaign, as the one just closed, in which issues so momentous in importance to the people, as the one pending on the eve of election, when corruption, as well as honesty, alike appealed to the people for vindication.

Perhaps corruption never sought so many opportunities to deceive, defraud and debauch the voter. Against corruption the people made common cause. The future destiny of our State depends upon the result. Either corruption will hold full sway and gain more power, and forge the chains of bondage more securely to enslave the people; or patriotism will have wrest from the foul monster his false scepter, and crushed his deceptive head, and redeemed the State and restore it to its former glory and prestige.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

PURIFY THE BLOOD WITH

The mortality in large cities is due to the fact that bad food, bad air, and bad habits have made bad blood. From the largest bone down to the smallest hair, the whole body is fed, supplied with new material, kept alive and healthy by the flow of blood. In fact it is the most important part of the system.

Indeed, it is claimed there can be no disease, save an occasional brain trouble, when the blood is pure and flowing free.

Brown's Sarsaparilla purifies and enriches the blood and invigorates the entire system.

Cross Creek, Washington Co., Pa.
Alfred C. Stephenson, writes, "I think Brown's Sarsaparilla can not be equalled as a blood purifier.

Anna B. Crook of Stoneboro, Mercer Co., Pa., says, "I have used Brown's Sarsaparilla, and find it a great blood purifier.

Pensions! Veterans!!

The Disability Pension Bill.

Act of June 27, 1890, grants pensions to all ex-soldiers and sailors who served 90 days or more in the Army or Navy during the rebellion, and were honorably discharged, and who are now suffering from any permanent, mental or physical disability contracted since the war or during the war whether from disease, injuries or effects of old age, at the rate of from $6 to $12 per month, according to the degree of his disability for the performance of labor requiring the exertion of physical strength; provided the disability is not due to vicious habits. This pension is not restricted to the veterans who have to make their living by hard labor, but is equally due to professional men or clerks, provided they have an existing disability which would prevent the continuous exercise of the physical strength of an able-bodied man.

Those who have applied under the general laws and who are unable to prove up the pending claim can apply for and secure this pension and then continue the prosecution of the former claim and secure their arrears.

If you are now drawing a small pension, say $2 or $4 per month, you can take this pension instead, and if you have an application on file for increase or additional pension for new disabilities you can continue the prosecution of such claims while drawing the new pension, or you can file an original claim for a disability contracted in the service while drawing pension under this new act.

Widows, children, and dependent mothers and fathers are entitled under this act and can suspend the prosecution of any pending claim, and take this pension, and afterwards complete the prior claim and get arrears.

Having been duly appointed an Agent according to the rules and regulations of the Department of the Interior in the prosecution of such claims and having had success in a number of cases I am always prepared to give information and assist claimants, and will assure them success if they are able to establish the facts as required by law.

Those interested should call soon and claim their reward.

CONSUMPTION,

IN its first stages, can be successfully checked by the prompt use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Even in the later periods of that disease, the cough is wonderfully relieved by this medicine.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."—A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middleton, Tennessee.

"Several years ago I was severely ill. The doctors said I was in consumption, and that they could do nothing for me, but advised me, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine two or three months I was cured, and my health remains good to the present day."—James Birchard, Darien, Conn.

"Several years ago, on a passage home from California, by water, I contracted so severe a cold that for some days I was confined to my state-room, and a physician on board considered my life in danger. Happening to have a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I used it freely, and my lungs were soon restored to a healthy condition. Since then I have invariably recommended this preparation."—J. B. Aha! There whistles Number One!
 And down the tingling grade she grows,
Tossing her cloud of tresses dun
 Back on the twilight's fading rose.

A mile—a moment—and my Kate,
 From years and half a world apart!
But now we'll smile at cheated fate,
 And keep our kingdom of the heart.

And—but the world is drowned in steam—
 A volleying, billowing, deafening cloud—
And men there run, as in a dream,
 And through the thunderous fog they crowd

"An open switch," I heard one say;
 An op—but that's a wreck! And she
A half a hundred yards away!
 Ah, God! How ill from fate we flee!

How cursed leaden drag my feet—
 And yet the rest are far behind—
On, through that misty winding sheet,
 My—heaven! I know not what—to find.

H-h! That I tripped on moved and cried!
 Ah! There she is! My Kate! my Kate!
Unscratched! And not a soul beside
 Is lost, of all that living freight.

But while the grumbling travelers hie
 To crowd the station with their fret
Here, sweetheart, stop a little by,
 To thank the Saviour they forget.

Nay not in words—that dull ear strains
 Not even to your music, sweet!
For that poor clay in greasy jeans
 There comes the stretcher and the sheet.

But of your pure heart's purest give
 To him the hungry death that spied
Betimes himself to leap and live—
 But stayed, and stopped the train and died!

And yon dumb clinger to the dead—
 Ay, weep for her who cannot! She
Upon the morrow should have wed
 With him that brought you safe to me!
 —Charles F. Lummis in Scribner's.

Foreign Beggars Not Wanted.

"Every man," says an American writer, "has got a forte. It's some men's forte to do one thing, and other men's forte to do another, while there are numerous shiftless creatures whose forte is to do nothing at all." The latter, with but a slight qualification, would seem to be the characteristic of Gaspone Pyeni, a middle aged German, walking with the aid of crutches, who appeared at Guildhall police court, accused of persistently soliciting alms from gentlemen in Broad street.

Pyeni, it was said, had not done a stroke of work since he had been in England, and he was always to be found in one or the other of the city thoroughfares begging. The wily German denied the soft impeachment; he was not begging, he urged, but selling matches. The ingenuity of this asseveration was made manifest when the police officer stated that true it was the prisoner had three boxes of matches upon him, but they were in his pocket.

The presiding alderman, Sir James Whitehead, remarked that matches were very much used as a cloak for begging. "You must understand," the worthy magistrate added, "that we cannot have you foreign beggars coming over to this country to beg." This being the first offense Pyeni was discharged, and he lost no time in hobbling out of court. If begging there must be there is no need to import foreign mendicants.—London Telegraph.

The Beefsteak Club.

Meetings of members were held every Saturday between November and June. All the members had to wear a sort of uniform, namely, a blue coat and buff waistcoat, with brass buttons bearing a gridiron and the words "Beef and Liberty," and also a ring having the same device. Each could introduce one guest, except on particular days, when accounts were looked up, the merits of candidates discussed and other business matters gone into.

One side of the room was occupied by an enormous gridiron, through which one could see a cook in a white cap and blouse standing by a fire in readiness for action. The steaks were served on hot pewter plates, together with Spanish onions, eschalots and baked potatoes, and were washed down with port or porter. The only second course permitted was toasted cheese. This disposed of, the cloth was removed, the cook collected the money in a plate, and the rest of the evening was given up to noisy revelry.—English Illustrated Magazine.

Ineffective Drugs.

"It is a great pity that physicians so rarely keep their own supplies of staple drugs," remarked a venerable disciple of Hippocrates. "Some country physicians do, but in the city the practice is fast dying out. Yet the great majority of the vegetable extracts on the shelves of apothecaries' shops are unreliable in their quality. The herbs used are not collected at the right season of the year, and are not properly cured, the strength varying according to the differences of the soil and climate where the plants grow.

"Vegetable remedies are easily adulterated, and they are usually prepared by men who lack the knowledge required for proper selection, manipulation and manufacture. Light, heat and atmosphere all bring about chemical changes, and in the course of time the druggists' preparations, even if originally good, become inert and worthless. Let the pharmacist be ever so capable, he cannot propound a good prescription if he uses worthless crude drugs.

"The druggist and pharmacist make their preparations to sell, while the physician who makes his own medicines exercises the care required to produce the proper effects. It is to the impurity and inertness of the materials furnished for prescriptions that much of the disappointment of physicians in the results of the treatment is attributable."—Fall River Herald.

Didn't Care for Sap.

He had come from the west to see Boston. One evening, a moment or two after leaving his lodgings, he was seen to take a knife from his pocket, cut a deep gash in a tree and walk on. He repeated this at intervals along the street.

Cautious as he seemed to think himself his mutilations had not escaped the notice of several citizens, who felt a sort of "woodman, spare that tree" veneration for the tall maples.

"Say, mister," said a burly citizen, approaching the stranger, "don't you think you had better let those trees alone? Too early for sap, you know."

"I don't care for sap," was the reply.

"Then what in the deuce are you driving at with that toad sticker?"

"Well, what do yer suppose? Here I've been in this ere town three days, and haven't been able to find my way home once. I walked around the common three times last night, and then I had ter hire a cab. Why don't you straighten your streets? But I don't mean to get left to-night; I'll know this street when I strike it. I'll feel my way by those nicks in the trees."

An humble apology for the streets on the part of the Bostonians followed. Finally a map of Boston was presented to the stranger on condition that he would spare the trees.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Successful Authoress.

Mrs. De Beauti—Perfectly. She married the editor.—New York Weekly.

Longfellow's "Village Blacksmith."

Boston has made the discovery that the original of Longfellow's "Village Blacksmith," who stood under the spreading chestnut tree and the muscles of whose brawny arms were strong as iron bands, is Henry Francis Moore, a blacksmith still living at Medford, Mass. The poet was often in Medford previous to writing the poem, and was fond of chatting with Moore. The blacksmith is now 61 years of age, and is himself of the opinion that Longfellow had him in mind when he wrote his poem.—Exchange.

NONE GENUINE WITHOUT THE 5/A LABEL. Manuf'd by WM. AYRES & SONS, Philada., who make the famous Horse Brand Baker Blankets.

RAIN! RAIN! RAIN!

If there's one set of men who appreciate a good waterproof coat it is the farmer. He knows that a "Fish Brand Slicker" costs him less per year than any garment made. Did you know it rains or snows one day in three the whole year through? A "Fish Brand Slicker" makes every day a pleasant day to its lucky owner. Go anywhere with it in rain, hail, sleet, snow, or blow, it is wind and water proof. Costs less than rubber, and lasts ten times as long. Rubber is good for show days, but will rip in a week. If you want a coat for hard wear and hard weather, get the "Fish Brand Slicker." Every good thing has its imitation, so has the "Fish Brand Slicker." Look out. Beware of worthless imitations, every garment stamped with "Fish Brand" Trade Mark. Don't accept any inferior coat when you can have the "Fish Brand Slicker" delivered without extra cost. THEIR FIRST FUSS.

A Squatter's Pathetic Story of the Time He and His Wife Quarreled.

The squatter's cabin had grown to pretentious proportions during the forty years he had occupied it. The old man remained unchanged except for the effects of passing years. The crowd of young people that had collected at his house to spend the afternoon pressed him to tell them a story of his early life in that region.

After a little hesitation he began: "Lemme see, hit's jist forty-fo' year ergo 'at me an' mer wife wuz maird an' moved ter this country fur ter set up fer ourse'fs. We had er log cabin with on'y one room, an' er shed fur ther stawk. I worked powerful hard er clearin' uv lan' an' er makin' er crap at ther same time. Wife allers fetched mer dinner ter me, an' she staid in ther fiel' with me mo'n half her time. We wuz happy, ez happy ez ef we wuz rich.

"One mawnin' we had er fuss. I disremember whut hit wuz erbout, but I went erway mad an' lef' her cryin'. At dinner time she nuver come. I 'lowed ter myse'f 'at she wuz mad, an' s' I, 'Let her stay mad ef she wants ter.' Bimeby I gits so hungry 'at I started fur ther house jist er bilin'. Wen I got thar ever'thing wuz thar 'ceptin' mer wife. Thar wuz mer dinner ready fur ter take ter me, but wife wuzn' thar nur thererbouts. I gits skeered an' I calls her, but no answer.

"Fine'ly I seed ther dawg er comin'. He axed me fur ter foller him plain ez talk an' I done hit. He sot off fur ther creek an' me er follerin'. Purty soon we comed ter ther creek an' he runned down ther bank an' me arter him. Nex' I heared him bark, 'Yere she is,' jist ez plain. I runned whar he wuz an' thar wuz wife er layin' on ther groun' pale an' white ez er ghos'. She smiled when she seed me an' say, 'I'm so glad yer come.'

"Then she p'inted ter er grapevine full er grapes whut wuz on er dead tree, an' she say, s' she, 'I wuz er tryin' fur ter git yer them grapes fur yer dinner fur ter git yer in er good humor with me. Er lim' broke an' I fell. Yer ain't mad at me now, air ye?' I felt like killin' mer fool se'f fur ever bein' mad at her.

"Hit don't matter whut I tol' her then. I toted her ter ther house, an' nussed her twell she got well. I wouldn' let nobody do nuthin' fur her but me, an' she 'peared like she nuver wanted no one to. Well, arter er while she got well, an' we wuz happy ergin. That wuz ther on'y fuss we ever had. Sence then ef one shows signs er gittin' mad ther yether says 'grapes,' an' hit stops thar."—Chicago Special Press Bureau.

A Berth in Heaven for Sale.

When Thomas Cruse, the bonanza king, made the famous sale of the Drum Lummon the news went all over the country. For a man to jump from poverty to a millionaire's affluence almost in a day was an unusual thing even in a mining centre. The result was a stream of letters to Mr. Cruse from cranks of all sorts. He remembers one of them particularly. It was from a minister in Washington. He announced that he had by some unknown means secured a good berth in heaven, the value of which was beyond estimate.

It was a "sure thing," and the minister was willing to make an affidavit to its existence. He had heard of Mr. Cruse's sudden rise to wealth, and thought an opportunity was offered for a fair exchange. He was not entirely willing to relinquish his claim on the future snap, but he offered to give half the berth if Mr. Cruse would in return send his check for half his fortune. Mr. Cruse decided that as matters looked then the minister would get the best of the bargain, and he declined to consider the offer.—Helena (Mont.) Independent.

Congress Gaiters and Drowning.

Speaking of congress gaiters and drowning recalls a fashionable middle aged physician who thoroughly believes in this fatality. He gave it away in this wise: While consulting a man in delicate health about his care for himself in the winter time the doctor said: "What kind of shoes have you got on?" They proved to be the fatal congress gaiters, and the doctor objected. "Did you ever see an account of a drowned man found in the bay that didn't say he had on congress gaiters? You laugh and say that doesn't make any difference, and there is no connection of cause and effect.

"How do you know there isn't? You can't trace it, but I'm not certain that congress gaiters do not tend to such moral and physical degeneracy that a man is liable to fall off a ferry boat, or in a fit of despondency to jump into the river. At any rate I don't wear them. I told a woman the same thing once and she laughed. I went on, and when I reached home found a letter from her, saying she had picked up a paper after I went away, and the first thing found several confirmations of what I said, and she wanted to admit that she was convinced."—New York Tribune.

Gaining a Reputation with Ease.

A South Carolina physician, asked why he located at Monclova, said: "It is a first rate place for a doctor. If a man is sick all you have to do is to tell his friends (no matter whether the affair is serious or not) to go to a priest and have him confessed and prepared for death. If he dies they will say: 'What a good doctor he is. He knew he must die, and so had his spiritual interests attended to.' If he recovers they will say: 'What a capable physician he must be. The man was in the last extremity and prepared for death, and he cured him. So in either event it is a first rate place in which to achieve a medical reputation."—Medical Record.

Peculiar Infatuation.

DIFFERENT METHODS OF FOLLOWING THE INJUNCTION "LOVE ONE ANOTHER."

Do men ever fall in love with each other?

Women do. Not long ago a young woman in New Jersey was married to a youthful laborer on her father's farm. Sometime afterward it was discovered that the husband was a female; the young wife refused, however, though earnestly entreated by her friends, to give up her chosen consort. The strangest part of the discovery was the fact that the bride knew her husband was a woman before she was led to the altar.

If men do not exhibit this strange infatuation for one of their own sex, they at least oftentimes give evidence of the fact that they love one another. There are many instances on record where one man has given his life for another. There are many more instances where men have given life to another.

It is a proud possession—the knowledge that one has saved a precious human life. Meriden, Conn. is the home of such a happy man. John H. Preston, of that city, July 11th, 1890, writes: "Five years ago I was taken very sick, I had several of the best doctors, and one and all called it a complication of diseases. I was sick four years, taking prescriptions prescribed by these same doctors, and I truthfully state I never expected to get any better. At this time I commenced to have the most terrible pains in my back. One day an old friend of mine, Mr. R. T. Cook of the firm of Curtis & Cook, advised me to try Warner's Safe Cure, as he had been troubled the same way and it had effected a cure for him. I bought six bottles, took the medicine as directed and am to day a well man. I am sure no one ever had a worse case of kidney and liver trouble than I had. Before this I was always against proprietary medicines but not now, oh no."

Friendship expresses itself in very peculiar ways sometimes; but the true friend is the friend in need

A Great Success

It has been proved time and again that when a manufacturer has a really first class article to sell and boldly makes it known by the newspaper advertising he will meet with success. Newspaper advertising is not experimental, and, when persisted in for years, will make a brand well and favorably known. In corroboration of this well known truth we point to the great success of the 5-A Horse Blankets. Everybody knows about them in this vicinity, and go where you will from ocean to ocean, over this broad land and you will find the 5-A manufacturers advertising their goods boldly and that their 5-A Horse Blankets are known to be the best and strongest. Strength in a horse blanket is of the utmost importance because of the rough usage a blanket gets. There is more opportunity for deception and fraud in making horse blankets than there is in making almost any other kind of goods. A blanket with but few warp threads, which will not wear often looks as well as a 5-A Horse Blanket with plenty of warp threads. How often have horse owners bought sightly blankets and paid a good round price for them only to find that they have been stuck with a blanket that will go to pieces in a few weeks.

Manufacturers of the strong 5 A Horse Blankets made no mistake when several years ago they took the stand that they would make strong, honest goods which would wear well, and that they would advertise them in the newspapers. The whole country is now with them in their efforts to prevent owners of horses being deceived by horse blankets which look well but which will not wear well

Tetter and Boils.

For years I was afflicted with an aggravated case of Tetter. I tried lotions, salves, soaps, and other outward applications, without any beneficial results. In addition to the Tetter, Boils commenced breaking out all over my body, causing me so much pain that I had to quit work and go to bed. I then decided that I had started wrong and instead of using external treatment I ought to go to the seat of the disease and purify my blood, as it was obviously bad blood that caused both the Tetter and Boils. I took several blood purifiers without any good effects About the time my case was declared incurable I commenced taking S. S. S. In a few weeks the Tetter was cured, and one by one the Boils disappeared, until I was entirely and permanently cured. This was three years ago, and since then I have been free from any skin eruptions. My skin is now, and has been for three years, as smooth as any one's. S. S. S not only cured me of Tetter and Boils, but also restored my appetite and general health, causing me to increase in weight and improve in every way.
